Going to College
Is Family Affair

By CAROL MATHER

VIRGINIA BEACH—Dorothy Pagan, 66, and her husband of 45 years, asked their son, Mike, to help them move to a new home. The last time they moved was when they were younger and just starting out in college.

Three of her daughter’s sons, ages 17 to 19, were helping her family move to Tidewater Community College, along with other relatives and friends.

“With our children, it was a very moving time, and we were very happy to have them here,” Pagan said. “This is the first time we’ve moved in over 20 years.”

The four-year-old students will now attend TCC, where they will begin their college education.

“When I started at College,
I made the right decision,
and I’m so glad I made the decision to go to college,” Pagan said. “I’m so glad I made the decision to attend TCC.”

The four-year-old students will now attend TCC, where they will begin their college education.

TCC class geared for novice truckers

By DONALD LIBERTY

Virginia's Tidewater Community College has long been a leader in training new truck drivers, offering a comprehensive program designed to prepare students for the rigors of the industry.

The college's program includes both classroom instruction and hands-on training, with students learning the skills they'll need to drive large freight trucks safely and efficiently.

John Smith, a veteran truck driver and instructor at TCC, says the program is designed to give students the knowledge and experience they need to succeed in the industry.

"We offer a hands-on approach to learning," Smith says. "Students get to operate real trucks, and they learn from experienced drivers who have been in the industry for years.

The program is rigorous, but it's also rewarding. When you see the excitement on students' faces as they master their skills, it makes all the hard work worthwhile.

If you're interested in becoming a truck driver, I highly recommend the TCC program. It's a great way to get started and build a successful career in this important industry."
