

NORFOLK CAMPUS

The Norfolk Campus was part of the original campus master plan for the Virginia Community College System. Its doors opened in January 1997 as a result of a combined effort with the City of Norfolk in planning a downtown campus. The Martin Building was donated by the heirs of Alvah H. Martin and contains the campus Library, classrooms, faculty and administrative offices, and training and conference facilities. The Mason C. Andrews Building contains student services, laboratories, classrooms, and faculty offices. The Stanley C. Walker Technologies Building houses computer laboratories, classrooms, and faculty offices. The renovated Jeanne and George Roper Performing Arts Center opened in July 2000; this performing arts facility supports local, community, regional and national events. The Norfolk Campus Student Center opened in May 2011 with space designated for student organizations, student activities, lounge/study areas, fitness/recreation areas, food service operations, and child care.
